Building or Refurbishing your Buildings

Advice for Residential Facilities

Keeping your clients and staff safe, keeps your business safe.

Plan for a safe, workable environment that's cost effective.

It's wasteful cutting corners and opting for the cheapest solution or getting advice from people who don't understand your work.

Consider the following:

- Have room for two people to work on both side of the beds
- Use lino floor coverings for ease of moving people and equipment. If you have carpet, ensure it's low pile.
- Have extra wide internal doors so equipment can be moved easily
- Have enough space between chairs, and other furniture in lounges, bedrooms, bathrooms, kitchens and the dining room.

Architects, project managers and building companies are great at the big picture of a building, however they don't understand the complexities of the work you do.

For a small cost an Occupational Therapist and Physiotherapist can help refine a design to ensure the environment will work effectively and safely for your staff and residents.
